Tool: SEOStack Keyword Tool

The screenshot shows the SEOStack Keyword Tool v1.1.7 interface. On the left, there is a sidebar with the following sections:

- Enter Seed keyword: A text input field containing the text "*DOG GROOMING".
- Wildcard (*) Modifiers: A list of checkboxes for "a-z", "0-9", "Questions" (which is checked), and "Prepositions".
- Select Sources: A list of checkboxes for various search engines: "Google" (checked), "Youtube", "Bing", "Yahoo", "Amazon", "Ebay", "DuckDuckGo", and "Pinterest".

On the right, a table displays the results of the search. Each row contains a rank number, a red 'X' icon, and a question suggested by Google.

Question: What countries do you source from? Is it safe?
Answer: We have used this food since it was released on the market. We moved from Merrick brand. Our dogs have not once gotten sick, and have thrived on Wag brand. They absolutely love it. There top 3 in our rotation is Lamb, Beef and Salmon. Again, those posters that want to take their aggression out on Amazon will do w... see more

Question: Would you still buy this dog food, even though its not stated if any of the product comes from China?
Answer: My sensitive Husky could only eat Halo brand dog food....(USA made, and US sourced. No GMOs, humane meat sources, never a recall. (We tried every organic food on the market, and also Blue Buffalo-Halo was the only brand that did not create GI symptoms...)

Question: If you're selling a "beef" or "salmon" dog food, why do you insist on putting chicken and poultry products in it?!!? I want what it's advertised to Answer: Great question! Dogs with chicken allergies (the most common food allergy in dogs) should not have any foods containing chicken or egg products. Chicken fats are a by-product that your packaging specifically states is NOT included.
